Priority Nonsense

Announcement by the Department of Reconstruction, Ottawa, that more priority cer-tificates for the purchase of automobiles have been issued than there are cars available at this time in Canada reduces to plain nonsense the whole priority system. With the war over, why should the Government be the judge, anyway? How can Ottawa tell who is in more urgent need of a car than can the manufacturer or distributor of these vehicles? The public has seen, meanwhile, what hap-pens to the priority certificates, in what strange hands they sometimes come to rest.

The summary supplied by the department presided over by Mr. Howe shows that 17,000 Canadians now hold priority certificates-but no cars. There are, in addition, 000 applicants for priority certificates on the waiting list, which the Government now promises to "screen." Who will do the screening, and on what basis will it be done Where, in short, is one Canadian today more important than another in the matter of buying a new car?

If-Mr. Howe were well advised, he would wash out the whole system and let car mak-ers apportion their output fairly across the whole country. Essential services would continue to come first; schools, hospitals, the police, and so forth. Ordinary citizens — and who can really claim to be extraordinary nowadays-could take their turn in order of application for what is left. The result would be improved, because Government-sponsored avoritism-as often abused as used-would be screened out of it. Car "priorities" in peacetime are just plain nonsense, and everyone knows it.

Mrs. Marguerite Spratt

It was one of the unique aspects of the Canadian wartime scene that a woman should head one of this country's major industrial enterprises, a shipyard engaged in the stern business of building war vessels. That woman was Mrs. Marguerite Ethel Spratt, whose death this week at her home, follow-ing an illness of seven weeks, removes an outstanding figure from the helm of the Victoria Machinery Depot. It was her hands which guided in part this well-known local shipyard during the busy years that saw it pro duce in quantity corvettes, freighters and other badly needed war vessels.

It was not, of course simply as a wartime shipbuilder, that Mrs. Spratt made her imprint on the waterfront of this city. many years before that in company with her busband, the late Mr. C. J. V. Spratt, she had labored to create in the Victoria Machin-ery Depot an industry of value to this community, and to the men who thronged daily through the shippard gates. Since 1921, when her husband's health failed, she had been president and managing director of the enterprise which grew out of their joint vision and industry. Until her illness she maintained by daily contact a close super-with such an important undertaking.

Mrs. Spratt was a fine example of fidelity to her adopted city, to which she contributed much in practical and unusual business activity. A native of Sacramento, California, she came here with her bushand moon the came here with she came here with her husband more than fifty years ago, and ever since had devoted herself to the industrial welfare of the com-The shippard was her main interest, and it claimed her major attention throughout. Adjustment Promised Resulting from representations made by Major-General G. R. Pearkes, V.C. Progresssive Conservative member for Nanaimo behalf of the Citizens' Rehabilitation Council of Greater Victoria, some adjustment is promised by the Veterans' Land Act administration in the matter of small holdings. The requested unreasonable figures of approxi-mately $8,000 for a veteran's home in the Royal Oak scheme will be scaled down to a price range of from $4,800 minimum to $6,500 maximum, with the treasury absorbing the extra costs caused by delayed con-

This is a little more in line with what was promised ex-servicemen when the Land Act was promulgated, although it is to be hoped the final-gost to the veteran will be much nearer the minimum than the maximum figure. The monthly payments will be close to the original estimate, with $24 set as the average. The next step is to allocate the homes immediately on completion so that veterans may move in without further delay

An unusual tribute was paid to General Pearkes in the House of Commons when the Minister of Veterans' Affairs praised him for his efforts on behalf of veterans' legislation.

uquets are seldom presented by the Government to opposition members. The inter-cession of the Nanaimo member in connection with veterans' small holdings is an example of the interest with which the former Pacific Command chief has pursued'all matters pertaining to the welfare of ex-servicemen and Another Progressive Conservative member, Mr. Howard Green, Vancouver, raises a good point when he claims that a pre-enhistment disability should not be cause for re-fusal of a pension for war services. If a man is accepted as medically fit upon enlistment. his medical history so far as the services are concerned should start from that point. It is unfair to utilize his services as a fit man, and then on subsequent discharge for ill-health to credit his condition to a pre-enlistment ailment. Many Great War veterans suffered, and are still suffering, because of this pension restriction. It should not be perpetuated with the new veterans.

Courtesy Pays

Victoria is in the middle of a bumper tourist season, in some respects the most active it has known. Fourteen customs inspectors local piers are doing a big job every day in clearing, in and out, the bundreds of touring automobile parties that arrive by steamer from Mainland ports on both sides of the international border. It is noteworthy of them that they are performing their duties with dispatch and with courtesy, adding in a tangible way to the pleasure of these visiting parties. Victoria and courtesy have become synonymous in the minds of many travelers. in consequence.

The courtesy, of course, does not stop there. That is merely the beginning. same travelers proceed to hotels, shop in local stores, enquire their way about the com-munity; and everywhere, as a rule, they are received with kindly interest and attention. No one is too busy to help them. If they hear a cross word, or a sour reply to a civil question, it must be from some citizen who is feeling out of sorts with himself and with the world. And that is the way it should be. Victoria practises what it preaches in the matter of courtesy.

One has only to move a very little about the world to discover how welcome an attribute is plain, ordinary civility. To be a stranger in any place is to be under an obvious handicap. Where that strangeness is lessened by a friendly atmosphere, and more especially by little acts of personal goodwill, the result stays in the mind for a long time. The fourteen customs officers, whose overtime work on the piers is part of their daily round, are setting a fine example to the whole community. Courtesy pays.

Seen in Passing

If the immigration policies of Canada are to begin and end with the entry of some 4.000 Polish warriors to this land, they will be singularly lacking in vision. This is still the country of vast, empty spaces; of too few hands for the work that should be done; of undiscovered wealth on frontiers that have changed little in the last half century. It is the land, we so often boast, of opportunity; but of what use is opportunity if there is Nansimo secured its name from the Qual-se-oil, Saal-a-chim, Yee-shee-kan, An-no-we-hes and Taw-wit-kan tribes who lived in the district long before the first whiteman sighted the green shores of Vancouver Island. The five tribes were welded into a loose form of the confederacy known as Sne-ny-mo, literally meaning a big, atrong tribe. Coal was discovered at Nanaimo some time before 1849. According to historians, an Indian-chief digning for clams on a Nanaimo beach found a large piece of light black rock, and later discovered-to-his amazement that it would burn like wood. On paddling to the Hudson's Bay Company fort at Victoria, established in 1843, he saw the same kind of rock being used in a blacksmith's forge. After learning it was of considerable value and had to be brought a long way by sea, he undertook for a consideration to convey some to Victoria in his dug-out. In 1850 Joseph W. McKay located the famous Douglas vent or coul at Nanaimo. He was instructed in 1852 by Governor James Douglas "to proceed, with all possible dill-gence to Wilstubuysen Inlet, commonly known as Nanymo Bay, and formally take possession of the coal beds lately discovered." McKay landed there on August 27 of that year. On September 10, the sailing sinp Cadboro left Nanaimo for Victoria with 480 barrels of coal, Hudson's Bay Company employees who established a settlement ofhicially Nansimo secured its name from established a settlement officially adopted the name of Nanaimo en March 8, 1853. Before the end of the year, 2,000 tons of coal had been shipped. Half the miners were indians. Price of coal was $11 per ton at Nanaimo, and $28 delivered at San Francisco. Nanaimo was incorporated on December 24, 1873, and is the Unit eldest city in British Columbia.

error when he ventured to four spades.

The medal for shrewd bidding, however, went to West, for his pass to four spades. This was the eminentity correct course, but it still required considerable restraint, with West's freak holding. The pass was called for because East, by voluntering a reagones to a pre-empitive bid at the four-level-indicated substantial attength, and by that token was entitled to the privilege of steering the final course. West that told his story on the opening hid—it good have been needless and costly repetition to overcall four spades with five clubs. Very coatly, in view of the fact that East-West could not have made any confirst at the five-level, but that they would have saved South from an enormous penalty.
